

Hustle bustle on the floor...

The month of July abounded with colourful events and activities...

Etch a Sketch Day

Children, across the floor, were thrilled to etch out and explore various patterns & shapes revealing the colours below a black layer, creating a visual rhythm on a given motif.

Lollipop day

Lollipops have been popular and flavourful treat since prehistoric times. Playgroup to Sr. Kg children celebrated the Lollipop Day by watching a video on how lollipops are made. They treated themselves by trying their hands in making Oreo biscuit lollipops to satisfy their sweet tooth.

Art Week - Mosaic & Murals

The little Picassos' tried their hands at making various masterpieces using paints and paper creating an array of colourful Mosaics and Murals.

Rain Walk

The little ones from Playgroup to Jr. Kg, in their colourful raincoats and fancy umbrellas had fun walking in rain & splashing water on their friends & teachers on the school ground.

The more I see, the more I learn...

Bungalow Visit

The Jr. Kg kids visited a bungalow to have a better perception of the topic 'Homes'.

Matters matter

The ever-curious Sr. Kg observed water in its different states: ice, water and steam to get a better understanding of the same.

Parent Teacher meeting

At our first Parent Teacher meeting, the parents interacted with the class teachers and were updated about their child's progress in various areas.

They practice what we preach

After snacks when the class helper was cleaning up the room, children unanimously said 'thank you mavshi'. Oblivious to the kids' greeting when she continued to do her work, Veeha Desai from Playgroup C went to her and said, "Welcome bolo."

Ten parenting mistakes we should avoid

If your child is secretive and lacks trust, it might be because of your excessive irritability.

If your child is overly shy and indecisive, maybe it's because you try to help him with things he could cope with on his own.

If you buy her everything she wants, but she always takes other kids' toys, it means you don't give her the right to choose.

If your child often shows envy and jealousy, it might be because you compare her too often with someone else.

If a child is rude, it might be because they're following the example of their parents or a family member.

If a child is irritable and bad-tempered, it might be due to a lack of attention. She simply doesn't know how else to be noticed.

If your child lies to you, it might be because you reacted too harshly to their previous mistake.

If your child doesn't respect others, it might be because you tell her what to do without acknowledging her feelings.

If your child can't stand up for himself in difficult situations, it could be because you told him off in front of others. You should never do this, even in front of his siblings.

Health Tip

Encouraging kids to eat fruits

- Keep a bowl of fruit on the kitchen table for a quick, easy snack.
- Add raisins, bananas and other fresh or dried fruits to hot or cold cereals.
- Add bananas or berries to pancakes.

- Provide dried fruit instead of candy.
- Freeze fruits such as bananas or grapes for a frozen treat.
